

HITLER PLAN STILL UNKNOWN

EUROPE ANXIOUSLY AWAITED HITLER'S POLICY STATEMENT

NONE ABLE TO PREDICT WHETHER COURSE WOULD BE PEACE OR WAR

(By The Associated Press.) Europe today spent its most anxious day since the World War in last-minute preparations for whatever might spring from the speech in which Adolf Hitler was expected to disclose whether Germany would use force against Czechoslovakia.

In Prague, the Czech government decided to invoke martial law in sections of the Sudeten German region if serious disorders develop after Hitler's momentous speech at Nurnberg.

Meanwhile the little republic, fearing a bitter and threatening speech by Hitler, kept her troops in readiness along her border with Germany.

The French cabinet met with premier Edouard Daladier to keep close watch on "exterior problems" while France's fighting forces—an estimated 2,000,000 men, 2,000 warplanes and 200 warships—were held at the peak of their fighting efficiency.

A telephone connection was held open between the office of Daladier—who is also war minister—and No. 10 Downing street, London. He and British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain were said to have conversed frequently during the day.

Crowds in Paris Streets

Crowds gathered in Paris streets to watch news bulletin boards, tensely awaiting word from Germany.

The British cabinet met in emergency for two hours and then adjourned, apparently confident all possible had been done to head off war and to be ready if German forces start marching to the east.

Observers expressed belief that British naval, military and air precautions were considerably more extensive than the government's quiet manner would indicate.

Hitler told 13,000 officers and men of the German Army, air force and marines:

"You are the best weapons existing today, you are getting the best training and I know you have the best character."

He spoke only seven minutes at the rally, the last but not the least, concluding the Nurnberg congress tonight.

Without Goering

For the first time he appeared without his trusted lieutenant, Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, at his side. Unknown to the multitudes at Nurnberg, Goering was taken suddenly ill and ordered to quit all activity for several days.

There were none who could predict what the Fuehrer would say—whether he might steer a course of peace or war or, by silence, prolong Europe's dread.

Massive army demonstrations at Nurnberg, Germany, set the stage for Hitler's speech against the background of fervent patriotism at the annual Nazi party congress.

In advance of the Fuehrer's speech on foreign policy, high Nazi officials declared the fate of 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans in Czechoslovakia—whose demands for autonomy Hitler has backed—have become matter of national honor to Nazi Germany.

Two signs that Hitler was like-

GOERING, HITLER'S CHIEF LIEUTENANT, IS REPORTED ILL

GREAT SECRECY SURROUNDED HITLER AND HIS PLANNED SPEECH TONIGHT

NURNBERG, Germany, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, addressing 13,000 officers and men of the army, air force and marines today, assured them, "you have the best weapons existing today, you are getting the best training and I know you have the best character."

For the first time in eight days of rallies at the tenth annual Nazi party congress here, the Fuehrer stood in the reviewing stand without his trusted chief lieutenant, Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering.

Unknown to the great multitude, Goering was taken ill suddenly last night and removed to a nearby town for "absolute rest."

Hitler, whose portentous address on foreign policy will conclude the congress tonight, spoke only seven minutes to the military forces.

He assured them that only by their aid had the annexation of Austria been possible.

"No negotiations, no conferences gave our national right to unity," Hitler declared. "We had to take it and could take it, thanks to your existence, my soldiers."

The ground was prepared ideologically in advance for Anschluss with Austria, Hitler said, by the work and teachings of the Nazi party.

Effect of Illness Not Known

What effect Goering's illness would have on Hitler's plans to invade Czechoslovakia no one in official circles could tell.

All questions were referred to the address the chancellor was to make tonight.

Official circles, however, said the Fuehrer's illness, even if it were to last, would not affect the Nazi party's plans to invade Czechoslovakia.

The absence of the No. 2 Nazi from this morning's military display on Zepplins meadow was noted and at first it was reported he was closeted with Hitler in the hotel where the Fuehrer was preparing tonight's speech on which may hang the fate of Europe.

But doctors' communiques announced:

"Field Marshal Goering has contracted inflammation of the lymphatic glands in the right leg. In addition he has catarrh of the throat. His several day condition demands several days of absolute rest in bed."

End of yesterday's strenuous participation in the tenth annual rally of the Nazi party, now nearing its climax in the anxiously-awaited speech of the Fuehrer to be delivered tonight.

Secrecy About Hitler

Hitler was surrounded by a great secrecy than ever as he worked on the address. Even cabinet ministers who ordinarily are ready to give an inkling of the turn events are taking made it a point to observe silence. But orders to observe silence were not until after the Fuehrer returned from the afternoon military spectacle.

Demand Is Made That "Rights" Be Granted To Sudeten Germans

NURNBERG, Germany, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Reichsfuehrer Hitler in one of the greatest oratorical efforts of his life threw down the gauntlet to England and France tonight, asserting that come what may Germany is determined to liberate the Sudeten Germans.

Hitler's promise of aid to the 3,500,000 Sudetens in Czechoslovakia was unconditional.

"I assure the democracies that the fate of the Sudetens is not a matter of indifference to us," he said challengingly.

"If these harassed people feel they are without rights and aid they will get both from us."

"The Almighty did not create 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans to deliver them over to a hated foreign regime," Hitler shouted at the closing of the annual Nazi party rally in a speech which the world had awaited.

"The Almighty has not created 7,000,000 Czechs to act as the guardians of these Germans."

As a last possibility of peaceful solution of the conflict in Czechoslovakia, the German leader suggested self-determination for the Sudetens, without explaining, however, what machinery should be invoked.

As Hitler drove the three miles back to his hotel after the speech the streets were jammed with enthusiastic Nazis who greeted him with ecstatic hells.

Patriotic Fervor

In a week filled with emotional climaxes nothing had heretofore occurred which produced such demonstrations of patriotic fervor as those which greeted the Fuehrer's one and a third hour speech.

Hitler's hatred of the Czechs of whom he spoke in contemptuous terms seemed centered upon the personality of President Eduard Beneš of Czechoslovakia. "Beneš invented the lie we mobilized our troops May 21," he charged.

Thousands of his ardent supporters, shouting "Heil Hitler," "A great power cannot stand for such a contemptible attack the second time," he challenged.

Hitler made clear only that Germany was standing by to see that the Germanic minority obtained their "right of self-determination."

He ruled out the idea of a plebiscite because, he said, it "would only be conducted under brutal oppression."

The jammed Congress Hall cheered lustily as Hitler tore into Czechoslovakia for "mistreating and oppressing" Sudeten Germans, whose demands for autonomy he supports.

Being Ruined

He declared they were "being systematically ruined and doomed to slow extinction."

Aggressively, Hitler continued, "I am a national socialist. As such I always hit back immediately."

It was evident throughout that he was making a last hour attempt to persuade the French and with them the British that it was not in their interest to risk the possibility of a European war over Czechoslovakia. He repeated Germany's readiness to bury the hatchet forever regarding the Sudeten question.

"The depriving of these human beings of all rights must come to an end," he thundered.

He told his cheering followers that "we see democracy and bolshevism arrayed in a solid front" against Nazi Germany.

TYDINGS-LEWIS CAMPAIGN IN MARYLAND IN SPOTLIGHT FOR OPENING OF POLITICAL WEEK

(By The Associated Press.) The Tydings-Lewis primary in Maryland edged today in the twilight hours of the campaign for the state election, forerunner of the general November ballot.

Voting in the two states inaugurated a busy political week, which will go far in determining the success or failure of President Roosevelt's efforts to defeat congressmen opposed to his program.

Senator Millard E. Tydings of Maryland, one of those on the president's blacklist, was up for democratic renomination against Rep. David J. Lewis, which Mr. Roosevelt lauded as a security pioneer. Georgia will settle a similar contest Wednesday.

There was no senate seat at stake in Maine, one of the two states lost by the Roosevelt-Garner ticket in 1936, but democrats were trying to defeat a republican governor and three republican house members.

The traditional but sometimes erroneous theory that the Maine election indicates national sentiment brought both democratic Chairman James A. Farley and Republican Chairman John Hamilton into the state campaign.

It would be a talking point for democrats elsewhere if they could win one or more of the Maine offices on today's ballot.

Barrows and Brann

Gov. Lewis O. Barrows, republican, was opposed by Louis Brann, his democratic predecessor who lost a senatorial race two years ago.

The Townsend old age pension program has been one of the principal issues in the congressional contests, for the three republican incumbents received the endorsement of Townsend groups.

Mr. Roosevelt did not take part in the Maine campaign, but he went into Maryland a week ago to speak in behalf of Lewis.

The 60-year old representative, who rose from coal miner to lawyer and legislator, contends that Tydings has voted more as a republican than as a democrat. The senator, who at 48 is seeking a third term, has argued that his opponent would be merely a rubber stamp.

The outcome of their battle, one of the most intense Maryland has witnessed in recent years, is complicated by an unusual vote in the Maine campaign. Each county has from three to seven unit votes, depending on its legislative representation. The candidate getting a popular majority in a county wins all unit votes.

Republican Candidates

The democratic victor will oppose either Oscar Leser, former Baltimore judge, or Galen Tait, into the republican state chairmanship. Harry Nice, one of the nation's few republican governors sought renomination against Harry T. Phoenix, while the democrats had a four-way gubernatorial contest.

BULLET-PIERCED SKELETON THAT OF ESCAPED PRISONER

GRAHAM, Sept. 12.—(AP)—A bullet-pierced skeleton found in a canyon near here has been identified as that of Bill Humphries, one of four men who escaped the Sherman jail on July 28.

Sheriff Henry C. Williams, Jr., of Graham, said identification was established through a ring found on a finger bone.

Williams said officers believed Humphries was shot to death. Charred portions of the skeleton indicated an attempt had been made to burn the remains.

An automobile used by four men who kidnaped E. E. Hughes, of Burk Burnett, at Bridgeport on July 29 was found near the scene. Three other jail fugitives were apprehended after the kidnapping.

COUNTY HEALTH OFFICER HEARD BY COMMISSIONERS

PREVALENCE DIPHTHERIA AND HEALTH UNIT SUBJECT DISCUSSION

A discussion with Dr. S. H. Burnett, health officer, on the prevalence of diphtheria in various sections of the county, particularly in the Corbett community, was held Monday morning by the commissioners' council. Dr. Burnett outlined the conditions, pointing out a number of cases and instances. He said the state health department will not furnish treatment for the cases already developed but will furnish the preventive treatment. He desired to have the court's orders on the situation. Dr. Burnett was advised to take up the matter with the health department and was assured the court desired to work out some solution of the problem for future action.

The county physician praised the health unit as suggested for this county, but pointed out it was primarily a preventative organization and said it would not take over the duties of the city and county health officers in the charity work, jail and farm duties. He said such a unit was fine and good, especially if a unit covered

PRESENT MILITARY MOVEMENTS IN EUROPE OFFER PARALLEL TO FEW WEEKS BEFORE WORLD WAR

By ANDRUE BEEDING. WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—(AP)—A striking parallel to the tragic weeks preceding the World War arises in the minds of informed observers here who watch the military movements in Europe.

Germany partly mobilizes for maneuvers, then comes French and Czechoslovakian partial mobilization orders. As France pours men into the Maginot line along the German border, Germany sends men into her Siegfried line just opposite.

On the sea, Great Britain concentrates her fleet off North Scotland in position to blockade Germany. France cancels leaves of naval men and places Marseille under military law. Italy stands by ready for action.

Persons close to the state department still believe conflict can be averted if civil governments and diplomats make the decision. But they fear the part the European military element might play in the negotiations.

Thus it was in 1914.

Austria mobilized against Serbia after the assassination June 28 of Archduke Franz Ferdinand, heir to the Austrian throne, and his wife, by a young Serb. After diplomatic exchanges and an ultimatum, Austria invaded Serbia. Then, another curious parallel with the present occurred. Britain suggested as a compromise that Austria be content with the occupation of Belgrade until indemnification was paid for the assassination. The London Times, although disavowed by the British foreign office, has proposed that Germany be permitted to occupy the Sudeten portion of Czechoslovakia and be content with that.

On the ground that Austria also had mobilized troops in Galicia, facing Russia, Czar Nicholas issued pre-mobilization orders July 28 and later full mobilization decrees. Austria mobilized July 30.

Germany came into the military picture July 31 with an imperial order declaring "a state of threatening danger of war." She mobilized August 1, following ultimata to Russia and France. The French government ordered its troops to stay six miles back of the frontier to avoid incidents with German troops. Belgium placed her army on a "reinforced peace footing" July 30. General mobilization followed the next day.

So diplomats gave way to general and admirals when declarations had to be made. Germany's declarations of war against Russia and France came August 3.

NAVARRO RURAL POWER COMPANY SEEKS MORE FUNDS

ADDITIONAL LOANS $400,000 SOUGHT TO EXTEND LINES THREE COUNTIES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—(Sp.)—The Rural Electrification Administration has given preliminary consideration to an application of the Navarro Rural Power Co-operative, Inc., Corsicana, Texas, for an additional loan of $400,000 to extend its rural lines 400 miles to serve 3450 farms in Navarro, Hill and Ellis counties, and has outlined the steps which must be completed before an allotment of funds can be made.

The original application covered 262 miles to serve 948 customers. REA has already allotted $273,500 for this project. It will be necessary for the project sponsors to obtain and submit signed applications for membership in the co-operative as well as applications for electrical service from it; also obtain signed easements for the right-of-way for the power lines, and prepare and send to REA a detailed map of the proposed extension. The same retail rate which has already been established for the first section of the project will probably apply on this new section. Under this rate, residential customers pay a minimum bill of $2.45 a month, for which they may

AMERICAN LEGION CONVENTION OF TEXAS NOT WHAT IT USED TO BE AUSTIN POLICE DECLARED

By HOWARD C. MARSHALL, Austin, Sept. 12.—(Sp.)—The Texas American Legion convention in Austin brought this comment from city police: "The old gray mare ain't what she used to be—and neither is the Legion."

Recalling the roaring days of the Legion's infancy when the mischief-bent young war veterans practically "commandered" a convention city, took it apart, kicked it around and played hoh generally, police officials breathed a sigh of relief.

A survey the "morning after" the four-day convalesce here revealed the state capitol still in receive 25 kw, enough electricity to light the average home adequately and operate an appliance and $5.20 pays for 100 kw, enough for adequate lighting and operating washing machine, an iron, a radio, water pump and one major appliance such as a refrigerator.

Speed in further development of this project, dependent on a large measure upon a continuance of the community co-operation which is principally responsible for the success of the project so far. If the information about this proposed addition is satisfactory, REA expects to be able to allot money to meet the entire construction costs. No money will be lent to pay for rights-of-way.

fact and on its old site, statues still erect and in place, street lights in perfect condition and hotels tranquil.

Only one officer found a crap game. "They pried me loose from a dollar," he sighed.

In the old days, the constabulary generally was instructed not to interfere with the high jinks of the Legionnaires and many an officer was torn between duty and orders when forced to stand idly by and watch "zings-on" which ordinarily would have rushed them into preventive action.

But all that apparently has gone with the wind, mused a police captain, adding he was "glad of it."

One officer gave the reason by pointing to good-looking youths—members of the sons of the Legion—marching proudly besides their middle-aged dads in the big parade.

"They've got to be examples to their boys, now," he said.

The only stunt which even approached old-time Legion revelry occurred on the convention floor. Three men had been nominated for sergeant-at-arms. The secretary was preparing to call the roll of posts, a tedious procedure prescribed by election rulings.

"Why don't you guys march for it and save time," someone shouted.

Guffaws turned to cheers and without waiting on a vote to determine the legality of the procedure, the three men marched to the judges' table and slipped coats.

Ernest L. Howard of Graham won from Joe J. Grammer of Port Arthur and Frank Bell of San Angelo.

Among resolutions adopted by the Legionnaires was one requesting the national convention at Los Angeles to take "such steps as are necessary to bring about the national recognition of gold star fathers."

The petition recited that while special recognition rightfully had been given "our gold star mothers," none had been given "fathers of our comrades who made the supreme sacrifice" and that our fathers paid sufficient price and suffered anguish and sorrow the same as our gold star mothers.

Another urged the Texas congressional delegation to obtain passage of a bill converting the American Legion cemetery at Legation, Texas, into a national cemetery.

Still another suggested the national convention include in its legislative program an effort to effect a change in the federal social security act which would permit foster home care for dependent children in homes other than those of relatives if relatives could not provide homes.

COTTON BAGGING IS NOW REPLACING JUTE MATERIALS

MUCH COTTON COULD BE CONSUMED IN THIS WAY IF ALL GINS USE IT

COLLEGE STATION, Sept. 12.—(Sp.)—Cotton bagging, long considered by the industry in its search for new uses for the fiber, has replaced jute bagging at at least two gins serving Texas on variety cotton community associations, according to C. E. Bowles, organization specialist, and E. A. Miller, assistant director of the Texas and M. College Extension Service, who have just completed a tour of one-variety communities. The communities using cotton bagging were Bonnie View in Reagan county and Lone Tree in Victoria county.

It has been pointed out that a normal crop of cotton in the United States would require about 75 million yards of material for the equivalent of about 135,000 bales of cotton a year. An additional advantage, it is said, would be an expected preference of spinners for the cotton bagging material. The jute now used mixes with the cotton fiber and requires extra time and labor in the cleaning operation.

Cotton bagging was tried out in a small way last year in the southeastern states and about 16,000 bale coverings were supplied. Bonnie View is believed to be the first Texas station to use the cotton patterns, according to Bowles and Miller.

Season Almost Over
The ginning season is almost over at Bonnie View, but as soon as it was learned that cotton bagging was available, the association, through L. A. Weiss, Jr., Refugio county agricultural agent, secured 100 patterns to handle the remaining crop.

A few days later the Lone Tree association also ordered 100 patterns in a trial program. The use of the cotton bagging results in a more active bale, the Extension workers said. The bagging does not stretch or give to strain, as when the cotton is handled with hooks, but this was considered a fault by press workers who experienced difficulty in covering the bale when the cotton material was first used. Since the cotton pattern weights about 2-1/2 pounds less than the jute bagging burlers are allowed, an additional 15 points, or 75 cents, to compensate for the difference in tare.

The cotton bagging bought by the Bonnie View association cost 45 cents a pattern of six yards but not including the ties. Manufacturers say this price would not be possible with a small volume of sale, but they are receiving an indemnity from the AAA as part of that agency's program for diversion of cotton into new uses. The AAA has recently announced acceptance of an offer made by the Lone Cotton Mills company of New Orleans, the low bidder, for the manufacture of one million patterns of cotton bagging. This company offered to supply enough cotton bagging to cover the million bales at an indemnity payment of 28 cents a pattern, plus a selling price of 45 cents a pattern, f.o.b. the mill.

HOLY TERROR

Terror continues to stalk through what, with unconscious irony, we still call the "Holy Land." The native Arabs fight the Jews—regarded as immigrants in their own historic home—and the British fight the Arabs under their mandate from the League of Nations to keep the peace there.

This apparently is a part of the White Man's Burden sung at the opening of the Century by Kipling. We Americans seemed to believe in it, too, for a time, but are now contenting ourselves more with trying to police our own country, while Britain polices the rest of the world. The famous killed "Ladies from Hell" have been doing heroic service lately.

"From Acre to Lower Galilee," said a recent dispatch from Jerusalem, "south across Palestine to Nablus, the Holy Land resounded to rifle fire, the drone of fighting planes and the clatter of machine guns. There was intermittent bombing as British military authorities took stern measures to stamp out terrorism."

And here is another picture: "British troops to night rounded up more than 4,000 Arab villagers and drove them into concentration camps, as Royal Air Force planes swept over the Biblical plain or Sharon, machine-gunning Moslem terrorists and driving them to the hills."

There was fighting recently, too, on the plain of Armageddon, most ancient battleground in the world, which John in his Revelation said was to be the final battleground of the nations.

Thus the harassed Jews are defeated even in their quest for a refuge historically their own.

MORE WORK

When you get right down to it, the reason why the totalitarian or authoritarian or Fascism or Communist countries do as well as they do, in spite of their costly armament and clumsiness in human relations, is that they work harder than the democratic nations.

The opposite side of the picture is seen clearly in France. That country, with vastly more resources than Germany, has been sinking economically because it hasn't been producing as much as it used up. The 40-hour week was "an experiment noble in purpose," and many French people needed more leisure, but two years of a 40-hour, five-day week, with French factories closed nearly one-third of the time, and frequent strikes, have raised labor costs 20 per cent and raised the cost of living, disorganized many branches of industry, upset France's trade balance and set the nation back when it needed more economic strength.

"Perhaps the most glaring economic fallacy of the present day," observes the New York Times, "is that the world can grow richer by working less and producing less."

This truth needs to be more generally recognized in America. We need, of course, a fair and effective system of passing things around; but we also need more work in order to have more things to pass around.

Jay Franklin says Henry Ford is a boondoggler, with his Greenfield Village, his museum of antiques, his passion for McGuffey readers, and so on. And Henry probably calls Jay an impudent young upstart.

JUST FOLKS

(Copyright, 1937, Edgar A. Guest)

QUATRAINS.

Afterward
 I would rather smile or sigh
 By the living I have known
 Than to be remembered by Solenn carvings on a stone.

Achievement.
 Here's the moral and meat
 Of every man's story,
 The harder the feat
 The greater the glory.

Man's Way.
 Man's losses show to all who see
 Just how unlucky he can be.
 But he insists and always will
 His gains are due to brains and skill.

Vain is the person, youth or
 Jass,
 Who stops at every looking-glass,
 But vainly those who walk right by
 And think no faults upon them lie.

KIDS AND GLASSES

In the funny old days when folks didn't know much about kids, there used to be a superstition that eyeglasses were a nuisance. Boys and girls hated to wear them, boys because they thought the glasses hampered play, girls because they or their mothers thought they detracted from good looks.

Now everybody knows better. The child who needs glasses and does not have them goes around squinting, scowling, bumping into things. Boy and girl both are homely and uncomfortable. They don't get good marks in school and life is pretty bad for them. Then some fine day the parents think it's a good idea to have the doctor see them before they go to school. The doctor sends them to the oculist—the special doctor who examines eyes. The oculist gives a prescription for glasses which exactly and comfortably fit the eyes. And then what happens?

Suddenly the world becomes new and beautiful. Objects have sharp edges. Colors are clearer. Words formerly blurred stand out on the pages of school books. It's fun to read, fun to study, fun to play games with other boys and girls. The strained lines smooth out the faces. Scowls disappear. Eyes are bright and mouths are smiling. Good looks, lost because of eyestrain, come back to stay.

Glasses used to be horrid, too, like cages. Not any more. Now they are attractive, the frames strong but light, pleasant to wear, hardly noticeable to see. The kids who need them like them.

It is always a good idea to have the eyes looked over. Teeth too. And anything else necessary.

CRUELTY

Yes, as Burns put it, "Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn." And not merely in war but in peace; not merely in economic struggles but in private crime, and in perverted forms of law-enforcement.

One of the most hideous examples recently coming to public notice is the torture punishment of rebellious prisoners in Philadelphia, who seem to have been not only suffocated but cooked to death by steam heat.

No less startling and horrifying is the case of the former convict in Reno, Nev., who was found nailed to a cross with his clothes burning at his feet. He had insisted on "going straight," thereby enraging former associates in crime. "All right," they are said to have told him, "If you want to be a little Jesus Christ we'll make one out of you." So they nailed him to a rude cross with ten-penny nails through his hands and feet. Fortunately he was found before he died and may recover.

Really, what the world needs to straighten out most of its troubles, both personal and economic, is more kindness. We can generally think straight when we feel straight.

All these Nazi maneuvers with little nations like Czechoslovakia and Hungary are interesting, but they don't look like world conquest.

Government is now mostly the art of taxation. Anybody can spend the money.

"ARMS PROBLEM"FEWER DEATHS

The death rate for the United States and Canada continues downward. It seems as if the business recession has been good for us, with regard to mortality figures at least.

One of the big life insurance companies reports that industrial policyholders, who form a very large group, had the lowest death rate ever recorded in the first half of this year, with the rate continuing downward in July. The cumulative policyholders' death rate was only 8 per 1,000 population, a drop of 1-3 per cent from last year. The July rate of 7 per 1,000 "was not only the lowest ever attained by the policyholders in any July, but was also the last, to date, in a series of similar records established in each of 15 consecutive months."

It will be interesting and informing, when or if prosperity returns, to see whether the rate starts up again—in short, whether "good times" are good for keeping people alive.

ENDURANCE.

Human beings can get used to anything. The abnormal tends to become normal and they adapt themselves to it. Take war-torn Madrid. Correspondent Wallace Carroll writes: "I came here expecting to see a tense, war-stricken population living in a kind of shambles. I found instead a clean, orderly city, smiling, neatly-dressed women, courteous men and boisterous children."

There was no hot water. Food was rationed, and women had to stand in long lines to get it. When they got it, it was chickpease and bread of uncertain composition.

Statues, fountains and monuments were encased in concrete for protection, and windows blocked off with sandbags. There were underground shelters everywhere for refuge against the air raids. On the western side of the city rifles were always barking, machine guns clattering, mortars booming. There were barricades and trenches and much devastation on that front.

But within the city proper, people seemed normal, even cheerful. There were 40 movie shows competing with the siege guns, and 20 legitimate or variety theaters. You could see Mae West, Anna May Wong and The Barber of Seville.

This shows, perhaps, why the human race has survived the animal. Humans "can take it."

CONDITION TEXAS COTTON CROP HAS SHOWN DECLINE

The United States department of agriculture reduced the estimate of the Texas cotton crop for 1938 from 3,425,000 on August 1 to 3,200,000 on Sept. 1, a drop of 225,000 bales, or 6.6 per cent below the August 1 forecast.

The forecast by districts indicates that the northwest section of the state is hardest hit. The condition in five districts in that section was reported below an average and considerably below the August 1 forecast.
 1 All other districts in the state were below the August 1 prediction except District 8 in South Texas.
 The condition in District 4, in which Navarro county is located, was given as 65 as compared with 83 on August 1; 73 last year and 89 for a ten year average, indicating that the crop here is slightly above the ten year average on Sept. 1.

Junior High Eleven Has Started Work

Thirty-six football prospects are training daily under Coach T. E. Stone at Corsicana Junior High school. The 1938 squad is composed of the largest boys in the history of junior high school. Training got under way Wednesday afternoon and the mentor is unable at this stage to accurately estimate the grid ability of his charges, but he is optimistic.
 The schedule for the Panthers has not been completed. One of the newcomers, however, is being watched by Coach John Pierce of senior high school. White, aged 13 years, is reporting for the first time. He is six feet three inches tall and weighs 180 pounds. The tall boy is playing tackle.

EXCITING MATCHES GREETED WRESTLING FANS LAST NIGHT

Talmer Jones open air wrestling arena was crowded on Thursday evening and mat fans were treated to three interesting and exciting matches. The first match was between the "grunt and groan" exponents. And the final windup was most exciting of all and just what the outcome was could not be learned, as the referee was completely out as the result of an accidental injury.

The main event was between Mr. Who, the giant masked matman, and Salty. Salty was apparently over the 200-pound class. It was a hectic match and kept the fans on their feet much of the time. Barto missed a hold he sought and the masked one fell on him for a top body pin for the first fall. After much rough work Barto pinned Mr. Who for the second fall.

The third fall—if there was one—was a most lurid affair. After some of the roughest heat seen here in some time by viewers Barto became riled at some act of Mr. Who and went after him in earnest in a slugging match to the mat Mr. Who's feet struck Referee Harry Caddell, knocking him out and breaking a bone in his shoulder. Barto pinned Mr. Who but there was no referee to give him the fall. Who flipped Barto over and pinned him, but it remained a draw.
 In the semi-windup Clete Duval and Tuffy McMullen went 45 minutes to a draw. In most interesting and exciting match, Duval won the first fall and McMullen the second and they wrestled the remainder of their allotted time without further results.
 Joe Porrell pinned Otis Headrick in the one-fall curtain raiser after a match that was also very interesting. Headrick and Duval substituted for Tommy Tassus and Red Rodgers.

RELIEF ROLLS SHOW STEADY INCREASE IN FACE HIGH INCOMEWASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—(AP)—

Federal officials noted today that relief rolls have been increasing amid indications of the second highest national income since 1930.

Reports from three executive departments showed that: WPA enrollment increased by 28,000 in the week ended Aug. 27, sending the total to a new high of 3,068,963 persons.

The social security board said public assistance was given to 20,800,000 persons in July. It reported an increase over June of nearly two per cent in number of households receiving federal, state or local aid.

Commerce department officials estimated, however, that if current business trends continued, the national income for the year would be near $64,000,000,000, or about six or seven per cent below the 1937 total.

The official pointed out that since prices were lower than last year, the income produced probably would be near the 1937 figure than the dollar total.

It takes ability to EARN money...

and character to SAVE it

The best way to build the strong character essential to successful saving is through the practice of thrift itself. As a starting point we suggest an account at this bank.

State National Bank Of Corsicana

Who Creates CREDIT?

THE suggestion has often been made that banks should "create more credit." The truth is that a bank is only one of the parties necessary to the creation of credit. The other is a worthy borrower, able to employ bank funds profitably and to repay them when due.
 This bank has money to lend. It is anxious to make sound loans. If you wish to borrow, we will welcome your application.

SHORT AND SIMPLE PLATFORM FORECAST STATE CONVENTION

CONTROVERSIAL SUBJECTS ARE EXPECTED TO BE EX- CLUDED FROM DOCUMENT

By HOWARD C. MARSHALL
BEAUMONT, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Sources close to the platform committee today indicated that the platform to be adopted by the state Democratic convention tomorrow would be short and simple.

Several thousand delegates milled about flag-decked hotel lobbies and city streets while the party executive committee met to canvass results of the second Democratic primary August 27 and set the convention machinery in motion.

The Democratic gubernatorial nominee, who arrived in Beaumont last night for the first political convention of his life, himself assisted in the platform writing as the business of the delegates, but in other quarters the intimation was strong nothing elaborate was probable.

One report was that the platform would be confined, it wished of O'Daniel's friends prevailed, to subjects which the Fort Worth flour merchant discussed in his sensational campaign, and controversial matters would be sternly excluded.

To accomplish this end hotel lobby talk was a resolution would be introduced early in the convention instructing the committee on platform and resolutions to consider only the issues raised by O'Daniel.

Should this course be followed potential bombs of controversy such as legalization of horse racing, betting and liquor sale by the drink, which some delegates had threatened to toss in the convention windows, possibly would not appear.

Among matters which O'Daniel favored during his successful quest of the governorship and which therefore might be mentioned in the platform were payment of the full amount of old age pensions allowed by the law and abolition of the poll tax as a prerequisite to voting.

Soon after O'Daniel's arrival and enthusiasm greeted by several thousand persons congregated at the railroad station—he had journeyed by special train from his home in Fort Worth—he said it looked as if the convention would be "a love feast."

En route, the nominee was accompanied by Mrs. O'Daniel, his sons, Pat and Mike, and his daughter, Molly, made several press platform appearances to talk to and shake hands with members of large crowds. In Houston he was entertained at a dinner.

Seek raise in salary.
Mrs. M. S. Dookum and Miss Mabel Bonner appeared before the court in the interest of a $25 per month raise for Jessie Shelton, negro home demonstration agent. The colored demonstration agent is paid only $25 per month by the county and her entire salary is only $83, out of which she must operate her automobile.

The petition was signed by a number of the leading citizens of the county was also presented.

In the discussion, it was brought out that more than 700 negro children have been inoculated against contagious diseases through her efforts the last few years, that syphilis, typhoid and other diseases have been treated as extra duties and work through the colored agents' efforts among her people. More than 400 cotton mattresses have been made and now a campaign for turning wool into covers is under way.

There are 34 negro communities in Navarro county with 16 adult and 11 girls' clubs. The agent said her gasoline bill amounted to better than $13 per month.

Tax matters were discussed Monday morning.

Members of the hospital board were slated to discuss an X-ray machine for the P. and S. Hospital before the court Monday afternoon. Claims and other items of business were to be considered during the afternoon.

ly to act soon were seen by veteran observers.

First, they regarded his declaration yesterday that some Germans are denied "for the time being" the right to live in Germany as a sign that annexation of the Sudeten German area alone can satisfy Nazi ambitions.

Silent About Plans.

Second, they said, it has been typical of Hitler's career that he has been most silent about his plans until the moment for action is about to be reached.

Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Hitler's chief lieutenant, today stated that he was ordered to take "several days of absolute rest" in bed.

Sudeten Germans in Czechoslovakia, meanwhile, demonstrated with renewed fervor in many towns and cities. They demanded a plebiscite and appeared to be raising an issue of "saving Czechoslovakia from communism."

government broadcast appealed again to the people to remain calm and maintain order.

Officials reiterated Czechoslovakia's desire for peace but warned "the forces are manned."

Cabinet Meetings Called.

Cabinet meetings were called in London and Paris. The British ministers were in session at 10 Downing street for more than two hours.

They were said to feel they had taken every possible step to convince Germany that Britain would fight if France's integrity were menaced.

The French felt they had done all within their power to preserve peace but were ready for whatever might come.

British and French military experts were believed to be in close consultation; wide precautionary measures were believed to have been taken in England with customary official secrecy and preparedness were understood to have been maintained.

The critical European situation brought the League of Nations to a halt of sessions and before the assembly opened its 19th session.

Neutral Nations.

The neutral nations—the Scandinavian countries, the Netherlands and Belgium—decided they would be satisfied with a series of declarations that each League member could decide individually whether to join punitive measures against Germany.

Thus, left untouched, the League's punitive machinery would remain a potent weapon in the event of European hostilities.

In China, Japanese continued to concentrate effort on new overland drives toward the Peiping-Hankow railroad, which would give the army a direct approach to Hankow, China's provisional capital.

Japanese troops were reported to have been driven on both banks of the Yangtze river.

In Spain insurgent forces fortified positions won from the government in the north, and the vanguards still fought along a 10-mile front from Gata, north of Gandesa, to the foothills of the Sierra De Los Caballeros.

The fuhrer was said to be keeping a close eye on the situation in Czechoslovakia and was expected to make last minute changes as new facts reached him.

Sir Neville Henderson, the British ambassador, who remained at Nurnberg after other foreign diplomats, departed for Berlin last night.

Goering's absence from the morning display of Germany's preparedness, the salute of 13,700 soldiers, who paraded with 2,000 horses, and the playing of other war implements, was taken by Colonel-General Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the high command of armed forces, and Edward Milch, undersecretary for air.

Military Spectacle.

The war games on Zeppelin meadow, lasting more than two hours, gave 100,000 spectators an inkling of what might be expected if Germany deemed military intervention necessary in Czechoslovakia.

Goering had stood with Hitler through several hours at Luftplatz yesterday morning and then was close by for several hours more while the fuhrer reviewed a gigantic parade in the Nurnberg public square.

It was an exhausting day, especially following his long, tight schedule of Saturday, in which he proclaimed Germany's readiness to meet any enemy.

Mann in Picture.

Gerald Mann of Dallas, nominee for attorney general whose election was opposed unsuccessfully by W. Lee O'Daniel, the Democratic gubernatorial nominee, was in the picture. He is a member of the committee.

The Democratic gubernatorial nominee who arrived in Beaumont last night was in the room with his friends and did not attend the committee meeting.

Governor Allred, introduced by Blalock as a governor of whose policies all the state was proud, brought a big hand when he praised the committee "as the best in the history of the state."

The committee, except for a few changes, has served for the last four years. And is made up of the governor's friends.

"It is a joy to be here and drink again with the veterans of the Democratic Party," said Governor Allred.

Lauded Committee.

He lauded the committee not only for its work in behalf of the state party, but for what he said was its untiring cooperation with the national party organization. James A. Farley, chairman of the National Democratic committee, had repeatedly expressed appreciation.

Committees were appointed by Blalock to canvass the primary election and to select delegates to the convention.

Twenty-nine members of the committee of 31 were present. The new committee will have a membership of 32. One half of which will be women. A law enacted by the last legislature requires such representation on party executive committees.

Blalock was applauded when he told the audience Texas women were to receive this formal recognition in party organization. He presented Mrs. Farley, wife of the chairman of the executive committee of the women's division of the Democratic party in Texas.

Mrs. Edmondson said much of the credit for obtaining the new place for women in the party set-up should go to Governor Allred and Chairman Blalock who she said gave active support to the move.

Speculation Over Boom For Garner

BEAUMONT, Sept. 12.—(P)—Speculation increased here today that when the Texas Democratic convention would take tomorrow to further the boom for Vice President John N. Garner as the presidential nominee in 1940.

Some sources believed delegates would praise the Roosevelt administration and at the same time put forward the desire of the voters to have a change of leadership in the Texas Democratic party's choice for the presidency two years hence.

Others felt the matter might not be touched upon due to the desire of convention leaders to avoid everything with any possibility of causing a controversy. They said indorsement of Garner might be considered in some quarters as a slap at President Roosevelt, especially in view of the Roosevelt third term talk.

Several county remembrance conventions are being held in the summer months on record in favor of Garner for president. Texas and California supported him for that position in 1932.

Benjamin Garner, Jesse H. Jones of Houston, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has been mentioned as a possible Texas favorite son in the 1940 Democratic presidential nominating convention.

Mann Not Lost In Beaumont Shuffle

BEAUMONT, Sept. 12.—(P)—Gerald Mann, Texas' next attorney general, was playing second fiddle to governor-nominate W. Lee O'Daniel at the State Democratic party here today but was far from being lost in the shuffle.

The "Red Arrow" of Southern Methodist University football fame was showered with congratulations on his smashing triumph in the attorney general race despite O'Daniel's active opposition.

After being honored at a dinner last night attended by local state officials, Mann held open house today at one of the hotels.

The young Dallas attorney said he would take no active part in state convention deliberations and certainly had no intention of causing friction.

The former All-Southwest Conference gridder was left off the official Dallas county delegates' list. He said, however, that his

POLITICS

There will be senatorial primaries tomorrow in Arizona, Colorado, New Hampshire, Vermont, Utah, and Washington but in most of these states the incumbents have little or no intra-party opposition.

Louisiana also will have a primary but Democrats there already have declared Senator John H. Overton their candidate for reelection, which has no senatorship at stake this year, will decide other contests in a primary.

In Georgia Wednesday the primary will be between Senator Walter George, whom the president wants defeated; Lawrence Camp, white house choice; former Governor Eugene Talmadge, and William C. McRae.

Senator Lomenax of Connecticut, who like George and Talmadge opposed the 1937 court bill, will come up for renomination in a state Democratic convention Tuesday and Wednesday. He has been endorsed by Attorney General Cummings.

old home county of Hopkins and "about 50 other counties came to my rescue and offered to place me in the gubernatorial race."

Among party leaders at the Mann dinner was State Comptroller George H. Sheppard, State Auditor Tom King, Tax Commissioner Albert H. Daniel, District Judge Ralph W. Yarbrough of Austin and Everett Looney, State Democratic executive committeeman from Austin.

Keynote Speech Rumors.

BEAUMONT, Sept. 12.—(P)—One of many rumors circulating today in regard to tomorrow's state Democratic convention, was that keynote speech would contain denunciation of horse race gambling and sale of liquor by the drink.

V. A. Collins, veteran prohibitionist from Livingston, is slated to be keynoteer. He would not say what his address would contain in event he is chosen for the honor.

Governor-Nominate W. Lee O'Daniel, who will be in control of tomorrow's conclave, said several weeks ago he had an open mind on return of horse racing. He received support in campaign from both friends and foes of racing.

O'Daniel Has Carbine.

BEAUMONT, Sept. 12.—(P)—W. Lee O'Daniel's worries on the eve of the state Democratic convention here possible were more of a physical nature than political.

The Democratic nominee for governor had to call a doctor shortly after his arrival for the predicted "lovefest" to lance a bothersome carbuncle on an arm. Associates said the carbuncle had caused him considerable discomfort.

Allred Plain Democrat.

BEAUMONT, Sept. 12.—(P)—Governor James V. Allred who had control of the last two state Democratic conventions, was attending the current convention in the role of "a plain democrat" and apparently enjoying it.

W. Lee O'Daniel is the Democratic nominee to succeed Allred and the governor-nominate ways is in charge of the convention following his selection.

Mud-spattered, Allred arrived here last night by automobile from Galveston, where he had been vacationing.

We want to urge our farmers to enter something at the County Fair. Over $1250.00 in cash prizes are being offered. If you have some good corn, cotton, peanuts, hegari, potatoes, maize or hay, better get a fair catalog at once.

We especially invite those who have good poultry, work stock, hogs and sheep and dairy cattle to exhibit with us. Better see about entering something right away. Otherwise the space may all be taken up.

There are no entry fees in any department. A nice display space has been provided by the fair association, so why not use it and help make the fair a greater success for the advancement of agriculture.

THE INTERESTING SALAD

Miss Forbes tells today more about making your salad attractive both as to appearance and its appetizing flavors.

If you have been limited to certain ingredients in making your salads, you may be very much bored, and glad to have them out of your calculations altogether. The constant use of the tomato on the lettuce leaf grows weary with repetitions; and when the tomato is hot-house grown in winter, it has almost no value whatever. Even the lettuce leaf gets to be a monotony, yet there are many other and more appetizing greens for the base of the combinations. The Italians have at least six green leafy vegetables for this purpose, and all markets carry them.

When fresh fruit is scarce and costly, the vegetable salad may be eaten several times a day, as it will furnish the elements needed, and preserve and increase the alkaline reserve. Children, too, should partake of these salads as soon as their teeth have formed and grown enough for thorough mastication. These fresh vegetables, grated and easily masticated, are what the health teachers call "live food," which means they have not lost their food elements through long cooking. The taste should be cultivated for these "live foods," and there would be no craving for vinegar, salt, pepper, and the sickening sweets. There can be a zippy tang to a dressing made from lemon juice, honey, raw sugar, grated horse radish, garlic, minced onions, chopped leaves of mustard, sorrel, dandelion, or any of the greens, but make your own flavors by choosing from these! Get really interested, and you will never feel fed without a generous portion of these salads every day.

T. T.—Try dampened baking soda on the yellow spots on your skin. After two weeks of daily applications, if there is no Improvement, there is nothing you can use on them. A doctor may scatter the coloring, so it is dissolved and carried off in the circulation. Strong and caustic bleaches will cause deep scars, that will remain, since it means that the tissue under the stain has been destroyed.

Plan Big Parade For Opening Day Of District Fair

Considerable progress was reported Friday morning at a meeting of the fair parade committee headed by Maj. John J. Garner, and indications are that Corsicana will have one of the biggest and most spectacular performances in its history. Arrangements have been made for one section to be made up of a complete battalion of the 132nd Field Artillery, Texas National Guard, which will include units from Kerens, Italy and Corsicana, and possibly a medical detachment from Cleburne. Considerable interest has been indicated by various schools and communities in Navarro and adjoining counties and a number of entries are expected in the decorated float division. A number of bands have been invited to participate, and it was indicated acceptances would be received from several over Central Texas. It was also reported much interest had been shown in the western or rodeo section of the parade and a large number of Central Texans had indicated they would enter this unit in addition to the sponsors from many communities and the rodeo performers.

PRESIDENT BENES
URGES CZECHS TO BE READY SACRIFICE

EXPRESSES BELIEF, HOW-EVER, COUNTRY'S TROUBLES
WILL BE OVERCOME

P R A G U E, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 10.—(AP)—President Eduard Benes in a calm and reassuring voice broadcast to the Czechoslovak nation today an appeal to be ready for "any sacrifice" in the Sudeten German crisis.

But the president expressed belief the country's troubles on the minorities question would be overcome and the state would pursue its peaceful development.

Termining the present international difficulties the "most serious since the world war," he said the government's nationalities proposals to settle its difficulties with the German minority aimed to "guarantee the individual against the minority, against the majority, and against thought and national rights."

"We wish to contribute to a compromise of the difficulties which disturb Europe. We wish to cooperate with our neighbors, especially with our greatest neighbor, Germany, with all Europe and America and we want to demonstrate particularly to England and France that we understand clearly our responsibility for general co-operation," the president of the Czechoslovak state said. "We are ready to meet this responsibility to the extent to which the necessities of the state permit us."

Action Speeded Up
Speaking from his residence at this "critical moment," Benes explained the tempo had been accelerated our actions in treatment of the minorities issue.

"That explains the course we now are pursuing. We are modifying the tempo but we will survive the spirit in which this state is trying to solve these great problems of today."

President Benes said the republic had developed progress for 20 years, achieving "political democracy and freedom, economic prosperity, religious tolerance and social justice" step by step and without upheavals or revolutions. "The nationalities question, however, was a unique problem, he said, which had been a difficult one for centuries, requiring "new methods of treatment."

His expressed confidence the Sudeten-Czech problem would be solved peacefully followed by a few hours publication of the government's plan, and agreement of the Sudeten German party to resume the negotiations which were broken off Wednesday.

"Let us be confident and full of faith that we shall overcome the difficulties of this troubled time," the leader of the state of the Czechs and Slovaks said.

"I am certain our state will emerge victorious from today's difficulties."

Before he spoke, Premier Milan Stedra, conferred more than an hour with Ernst Kuntz, deputy lieutenant of the Sudeten ruler, Konrad Henlein, and afterward the premier was quoted as making a more optimistic view of the situation.

There was no definite information, however, of the progress of the talk, the first direct contact between the government and the minority-demanding minority since negotiations were broken off over the alleged striking of a Sudeten deputy at Maerisch Astrau Wednesday.

The search for peace was taken up by Czechoslovak radio stations, which, broadcasting in the German language, urged the Sudeten to give serious consideration to the government's plan, beyond which it can not go.

This republic, they asserted, has done its utmost to preserve an honorable peace with far-reaching appealment plan, beyond which it can not go.

There was a well-founded presumption that these points would be stressed by President Eduard Benes in an address tonight before an expectant nation and world.

The Prague government published last night 12 terms under which it is prepared to call off the bitter argument with the Nazi-supported Sudeten Germans.

Then it wiped out a specific grievance by taking disciplinary action against a Czech policeman who allegedly attacked a Sudeten deputy on the shoulder with a whip at Maerisch-Osttau on Wednesday. Because of that incident, the Sudeten promptly cancelled negotiations with the government.

The negotiations were scheduled to be resumed today, the Sudeten expressing satisfaction over the "liquidation of Maerisch-Osttau." A test of the government's over, prevailed regarding possible weekend disturbances and demonstrations in the Sudeten German area.

The government's concessions provide for reorganizing the Czechoslovakia into self-governing cantons grouping various nationalities—German, Hungarian, Russian, Czech and Slovaks—together.

An unofficial British mediation mission, headed by Viscount Runciman, was said to approve the plan which, if the Sudeten accept it, would be submitted to parliament for approval.

EXPERT DISCUSSES
RECENT TAX SURVEY
IN NAVARRO COUNTY

CURTIS MORRIS, EAST TEXAS
C. OF C., HEARD BY INTERESTED CITIZENS

An analysis of a recent tax survey made by Navarro county and a report of its incorporated communities, independent and common school districts was presented to a group of citizens in the county courtroom Friday afternoon by Curtis Morris, tax expert from the East Texas Chamber of Commerce.

At the close of the meeting, the group decided to attempt the formation of a county-wide tax advisory committee, perhaps the first of its kind in the state, in touch with financial affairs in their own school and community areas and also on the county as a whole. A committee of four was selected to eliminate representatives from each precinct, and included: Edgar Ritterbacher, Precinct 1; N. S. Crawford of Kerens, Precinct 2; R. V. Davis of Dawson, Precinct 3; and Dr. John W. Matlock of Frost, Precinct 4.

Tax Survey Presented
Copies of the tax survey made by Mr. Morris at the request of the Corsicana Chamber of Commerce were distributed to those attending the meeting. It was composed of 13 mimeographed pages of figures on the county and various subdivisions, and included comparative figures on population, business, agriculture, years, analysis of receipts and disbursements, and a brief discussion of the budget law of Texas.

R. W. Knight, executive of the local chamber, briefly presented the background for the tax survey movement, and then introduced Mr. Morris.

In his introductory remarks, Mr. Morris pointed out that each county is actually a corporation and each taxpayer is a stockholder and should take an interest in the affairs of the "company." He pointed out that because of a big increase in assessed valuations, the county was less able to carry on many of its activities than it was several years ago; he also explained the statutory limits for various taxes.

The speaker took up each of the various items included in the survey after stating that as a whole Navarro county's tax rates compared favorably with most of the counties in the state. He also recommended against operation of county hospitals, stating that in most counties it had been found that necessary medical services could be purchased more economically. He also made the same recommendation on county farm operations as far as caring for aged persons was concerned.

Offered No Criticism
Mr. Morris told his audience that he was not criticizing any of the expenditures made or suggesting any revisions but his main purpose was to interest the rank and file of the community in the point they would learn where their money came from and where it was distributed.

County Judge Paul H. Miller announced the public hearing on the proposed Navarro county budget would be held at 10 a. m. on Monday, Sept. 26, and invited any interested citizen to be present. His announcement followed an explanation of the budget laws by the speaker.

The speaker asserted that generally in Texas the members of the commissioners' courts spent far more time attempting to save money than in the past. He told the taxpayers themselves. He also discussed the growing totals of education budgets and told the citizens it was up to them to decide if they were getting their money's worth.

A motion to attempt the formation of the county-wide committee closed the session.

The plans were outlined preceding the session by Maj. E. A. Wood, of Austin, the board's executive director.

The board also checked over its bill for the conservation of both ground and surface water. The bill will require that all water in the ground water supply be divided in two categories, "private water," that used by the landowner for household, livestock and crops, and "commercial water," that used by commercial interests.

He also discussed the growing totals of education budgets and told the citizens it was up to them to decide if they were getting their money's worth.

OPPONENTS OF POL TAXES ARE
HEARTENED BY SUCCESS OLD-AGE
PENSION CHAMPIONS FOR OFFICE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Opponents of poll taxes see a possibility of new impetus to their campaign for repeal in the success of some office-seekers championing old-age pension plans.

Eight states require the payment of a tax as a prerequisite to voting, and six of those states exempt the elderly voters from payment. Those opposing the tax contend the result has been that old people constitute a disproportionate part of the electorate.

Texas is cited as an example. There the payment of a $1.75 tax is a requirement for voting, but persons over 60 are exempt. Recently W. Lee O'Daniel won the democratic gubernatorial nomination on a platform of $300 million in old-age pensions for persons over 65. There has been agitation for the abolition of the tax.

Arkansas, one of the states having no old-age exemption from the poll tax, will not vote a proposal to repeal it in November.

Other states having the tax as a voting requirement, and the age of exemption in each, are Alabama, 15; Arizona, 60; Mississippi, 60; South Carolina, 60; Tennessee, 60; and Virginia, no exemption for age. The tax ranges from $1 to $3 per year in each state.
